PROFESSOR MUSPRATT TO MR. ALLSOPP

"I have carefully analyzed samples of your Ales, and find that they do not contain a particle of any injurious substance. I and my family have used your Ales for years, and with perfect confidence in their purity. I know that Pale Ale prepared as in your Brewery, under scientific surveillance, contains a large quantity of nutritious matter; and the hop by its tonic properties, gives a healthy tone to the Stomach. "SHERIDAN MUSPRATT, F.R.S.E.

"Member of the Royal Irish Academy and of
"La Societe d'Encouragement."
"College of Chemistry, Liverpool."

ALLSOPP'S PALE or BITTER ALE may be obtained in casks of all sizes from the Brewery, Burton-on-Trent; and from the undermentioned Branch Establishments :—

Assurance Office.

ADDRESS.—It is seldom that LIFE ASSURANCE sufficiently answers its real intention. It is, for the most part, effected at very great cost. Mutual Societies frequently inflict all the penalties of the trading companies: they often hold up the number of lapsed policies as a source of gain, instead of regarding them as an evidence of the poverty of their less fortunate brother assurers, deprived of all help when most needed.

It would be an interesfing, though sad employment, to trace the policies irretrievably lost, and the amount of money fruitlessly spent in the unsuccessful attempts of the struggling to provide for their families by Life Assurance. From such misfortunes doubts arise as to the real advantages of Life Assurance, and blame falls upon the principle which should attach only to the practice.

The LONDON and PROVINCIAL MUTUAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY is founded on sound and equitable principles. It will not be borne down by preliminary expenses. It is a purely Mutual body of Life Assurers, whose business is managed at the least practicable cost; the premiums accumulate for their real object, and are not spent (as it too frequently happens) in very large amounts in conducting the Business. Neither accident nor inability deprive the Assured of their equitable share of the payments made by them. The Assured, the only parties interested, have ample opportunity of supervising their own affairs. They will meet at least quarterly to look into the general state of the society, and to control the expenditure in salaries and other disbursements.

A very great check to the almost universal extension of Life Assurance, is the fear that accident or want of means to continue paying the premium may at any time deprive the policy-holder of all benefit, or at the best (if he have the opportunity of surrendering the policy), of all but a scanty and arbitrary return. The LONDON AND PROVINCIAL MUTUAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY, on the non-payment of a premium, no matter from what cause, at once places on the Society's books, to the credit of the policy holder, a certain and specified reversionary sum, there to remain until claimable by death; no circumstances whatever to nullify this amount; reasonable proof of the death, the production of the policy, and the right to receive the money, being the only conditions of payment. The amount is derived from the premiums already paid, with compound interest thereon, lessened only by the fair value of the incurred risk; it is tabulated, so that the policy-holder at any time may know the amount claimable at death, in the event of no further payment being made, and on application it will be endorsed on the policy, or the policy will be exchanged for a new one at the reduced amount. Further (during life) a bonus will be added, at the next appropriation on the sum originally assured, and at each future quinquennial division due additions will be made.

Any member desirous of obtaining a loan on his policy, or of withdrawing altogether from the Society, can receive in cash the value of this reversionary sum; the cash sum being also tabulated, the persons interested, without applying to the Office, can from the tables, ascertain the value of the policy, either for the purpose of loan or surrender.

No more reasonable cause exists for forfeiture of sums paid into a Life Assurance Office, than for withholding moneys placed with a bank, assuming fair compensation is made for the risk of life that the Life Assurance Office has borne.

The investments of the accumulating premiums are restricted to securities legitimate for the funds of a Mutual Life Assurance Office.

To meet the requirements of the law, the Society has been registered under the Act of the 7th and 8th of Her present Majesty.

The Directors and Actuary of the LONDON AND PROVINCIAL MUTUAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY invite the coöperation of the public and of gentlemen of position and influence, who are of opinion that the principles of the Society, as affording solid and permanent benefits to the Assured, merit their support.

Further particulars, with prospectuses, and forms of Proposal may be obtained by a written or personal application to the Actuary, at the Offices, 17, Gracechurch-street, London.
